

Construction and Contracting Group

At Kennedy and Coe, understanding the unique business needs of the construction and contracting industry is only the beginning. We also have daily contact with the changing technology, legislation and market trends that affect your business, helping you move forward based on industry experience, real-time information and unparalleled expertise.

Focusing on family-owned and closely held businesses, we bring extensive experience to construction, highway, sewer, road, building, electrical, plumbing and general contractors. Our specialists can help you succeed with a wide range of services, including:

- Strategic Planning and Consulting
We can help you identify strengths and weaknesses – and determine how to most efficiently achieve your goals – with short- and long-term planning, operations reviews, succession planning and benchmarking.
- Accounting
With a wide range of accounting services, we can help you establish job accounting systems, perform overhead analysis and assist with year-end tax planning.
- Compliance and Bonding
Our professionals can help you prepare audited highway reports for the Department of Transportation and assist with financial statement planning to maximize bonding capacities.
- Reorganization
If you're reorganizing, we can provide fiscal year end strategies to minimize your taxes, financial statement planning to maximize refinancing options, and estate and succession planning to ensure a smooth transition.
- Software Support
Our professionals can use their understanding of your industry to establish a usable job costing system for accurate income level analysis.
- Financing
We can help you determine what kind of financing structure best fits your needs as well as provide sources of financing to streamline your activities.

Our strategic approach to accounting and consulting is specifically geared toward maximizing the overall profits of your construction-related business. By staying on top of the issues and trends affecting your industry, we can help you make your business work better, more efficiently and more profitably than ever.
